March 2016

A few highlights from Coach - The "I love sports" graphic at the top of the page is a reminder of something that I enjoy. As a PE Teacher, I enjoy watching the growing comfort level and successes of those kids who come to PE not loving sports initially or not feeling like they are very "athletic". Everyone can have the opportunity at PE to understand some sports and games better. They often discover that they have some hidden talents or perhaps some skills that just needed to be practiced in a fun activity to be revealed.

What we're talking about - We have had some interesting conversations this semester regarding the Superbowl and specifically, Peyton Manning. In an interview he said, "Do I 'pray for victory?' No, except as a generic thing. I pray to keep both teams injury free, and personally, that I use whatever talent I have to the best of my ability. But I don't think God really cares about who wins football games, except as winning might influence the character of some person or group." I couldn't have said it better myself...although it actually is the exact same thing I have said for years. I love the Denver Broncos and love to see them win, but mostly, don't we all love to see God in the business of changing hearts!?!

Just a reminder that Spring Break is
